

A Daughter Blessing

May you always embrace the blessings sung over you from the womb and the promises your Maker has whispered into your heart. When life screams for you to doubt, press into your Father's serenade and let the lullaby cradle you in peace and security.

Be courageous to love with fervor and compassionate enough to forgive the hurts and bruises flung by those who need the same heapings of grace gifted to you.

Wrap your heart snugly in the joy multiplied through thanksgiving, and count...each and every moment of beauty and goodness and wonder.

Dig deep, even when life is hard, and hold on to each moment as a gift, a chance to praise. May your hands be ever willing to give and your feet steadfast and unwavering in all that is true and honorable.

And may you walk in awe of your God as He gives you the desire of your heart!
